

Adam Peavoy

Associate Director - London Office

With Mecanoo since 2014

Professional qualifications BArch, University College Dublin, Ireland; Registered with the Royal Institute of the Architects of Ireland, RIBA and ARB; Academician with the Academy of Urbanism

"I have an endless fascination with how people interact in cities and in buildings. I enjoy creating emotionally engaging places for them to inhabit."

Adam is an energetic and highly experienced architect and project manager with proven design, technical and leadership skills. As an Associate Director of Mecanoo London, Adam is responsible for managing and contributing to several ongoing projects in the region. Over the course of his career he has designed and managed a number of award-winning projects from concept to realisation across multiple typologies from residential through to educational.

Adam has particular expertise in the effective management of complex multi-stakeholder projects, most notably buildings for academic institutions. His experience also spans a number of masterplans, including both mixed-use urban districts and academic campuses. Adam has been a visiting critic at a number of architecture schools and a design tutor and the University of Cambridge Department of Architecture.
